It's about time you saved time, with SOS

In any business, it's all about time; the time absorbed by admin and paperwork, and the time that's left to earn your fee income. SOS exists to help busy law firms manage their time, and their business, more efficiently. Our software streamlines your administration and management, so you can focus on earning fees.

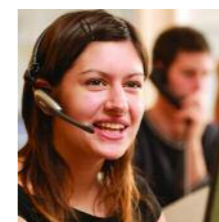

SOS has considerable experience both in law and IT. We now help over 400 UK law firms of all sizes to thrive, with the most effective, productive and user friendly specialist practice management software.

Whatever the size of your practice, you'll make more profitable use of your time with SOS.

Improving your performance

SOS software provides the tools you need to deal quickly and accurately with time-consuming yet vital tasks such as matter management, time recording, billing and ensuring compliance. It speeds up and simplifies jobs such as retrieving clients' files, generating emails and documents, checking for conflict of interest, managing cash flow and fund transfers, and bank reconciliation. SOS software also produces comprehensive yet easy to use reports, so you can plan, forecast and budget with confidence.

Above all, SOS software is cost-effective. The time it saves frees you and your teams to concentrate on generating income. In real terms, it pays for itself.

Sophisticated yet straightforward

Using familiar Windows-based platforms, our feature-rich and powerful software is entirely intuitive, allowing you to focus on your core business.

We constantly monitor developments in both the IT market and the legal profession, incorporating the latest software innovations to bring you relevant, helpful products that reinforce your competitive advantage.

Software that works the way you work

Our extensive experience of the legal profession ensures our software comfortably fits with and adapts to the way your practice works.

For example, our .Net-based SOS Connect software automatically saves your incoming and outgoing emails to the correct matter file, all within your Outlook screen. And its scripting feature lets you build your own workflow process into the software, quickly and easily. We call this matter management - an alternative that's quicker and simpler than case management.

Support at all times

Our effective, fast reacting support is proof of our long-term commitment to your business. You can access our team of professionals, from helpdesk support to systems engineers and technical experts, through several channels including online. If there's a problem, we can usually solve it remotely using our Network Streaming software, which gives us secure and unobtrusive access to your SOS system.

To ensure you derive the maximum benefit from your SOS software, we offer flexible training programmes to cover everything from installing a new system to refresher and upgrade courses, on-site or at our own fully equipped training centres.

If you're concerned about converting your firm's existing data to a new SOS system, you can relax. Our data conversion experts are experienced in a wide range of systems, and in 18 years, we have never failed to complete a data conversion successfully and on time.

SOS – focused on your business

Formed in 1988, SOS was the first company to offer Windows-based software for practice management, time recording and event management, allowing lawyers to do what they do best without getting bogged down in tedious and repetitive administration.

After many years working with law firms, we understand what it takes to run a successful practice, and we've developed a range of software specifically to help you manage your business more efficiently. Over 400 law firms of all sizes across the UK are now thriving with SOS software.

We believe our success is founded on the quality of our people, and their genuine desire to see our software properly installed and delivering all of its many advantages. So besides providing innovative, user-friendly software, we'll ensure you benefit from easy implementation, effective project management and thorough training of your staff, to get the most out of your new system.

There's no time like the present

SOS software could be saving you valuable time, right now. To experience the benefits of our innovation in your practice, please contact us today.
